is pleased to present

Future Business Trends for HR Management

Thursday, February 19, 2009

Summary:

What are the key business trends that will impact the workplace and the HR profession over the next several years? SHRM once again asked more than 1,200 U.S. HR practitioners to give their opinions in their 2008-2009 Workplace Forecast. In addition to looking at the trends and issues identified in their latest biennial Forecast, this presentation explores the context in which they are taking place – today's rapidly evolving Global Knowledge Economy. Join us on February 19th for our session with Steve Williams, SHRM's Director of Research.

Presenter:

With nearly fifteen years of experience, Steve Williams Ph.D., SPHR, is currently the Director of Research at the Society for Human Resource Management where he is a member of the senior management team and is primarily responsible for the organization's domestic and international research activities.
